Assisting Hands, a company providing assisted living in Houston, TX, has been voted #1 choice for assisted living alternatives in a community poll. Those participating in the poll cited the company's extensive background checks on their assisted hands, which includes national rather than only state wide checks, as well as their compassionate and above and beyond attitude towards their clients. Those who voted pointed out that clients are treated not just like elderly people, but rather like family. Now known as the best assisted living Houston has to offer, the company has been very grateful for this recognition.

Meanwhile, Terri Robbins from Assisting Hands says: "Assisting Hands provides case by case quotes depending on how much is required of the caregiver for each of their patients/clients."

The company stands for compassion, care, and respect. They point out that they provide personalized care in which each of their clients are treated like an individual with specific needs, and they are looked after as if they were family members. Assisting Hands wants to make sure that the relatives of the people they look after trust them in their hands, which is why they run such extensive background checks on all their trained staff.

There have been numerous reported benefits to providing in home care, and this has given rise to numerous new home health agencies in Houston, TX. However, Assisting Hands aims to set itself apart from the rest through their superior service. One way they have been able to achieve this is by working from their own personal perspective and background, which is to have cared for close relatives themselves.

By enabling in home elder care, the company ensures people can retain their independence in an environment in which they feel comfortable, protected, and at home. The stress of moving into a care facility is often very hard to manage, particularly for the elderly, who feel that they are heading rapidly towards death. By remaining in their own home, they also retain their dignity, leaving them healthier and happier overall. Assisting Hands is incredibly proud to be able to play a part in that and to be recognized for their service.
