

GrowUpSmart Releases Educational Videos For Tic-Tac-Toe Game

November 28, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

A lot of games are known as "classics" and these include chess, backgammon, and tic-tac-toe. Because they are classics, it is almost expected that people also know exactly how to play them but this isn't really the case. Educational toy company GrowUpSmart is fully aware of this, which is why they have produced a set of videos available to all who purchase their Tic-Tac-Toe game. These videos teach children how the game is played.

GrowUpSmart's Martin Reinhold says: "Most people think that everybody knows how to play tic tac toe. In that lies a problem, however, because it makes those who don't know how to play it feel uncomfortable about coming forward and saying that. Parents want their kids to be able to fit in with their peer groups straight away, which means the responsibility to teach the rules of the games lies with them. Our new instructional videos ensure that no child will ever have to go to school or social situations again without knowing how to play it, and play it well."

GrowUpSmart's Tic Tac Toe board is one of their best selling items. It is made fully of wood and does not have any removable parts, using blocks with zeros or crosses that can be turned instead. As such, it is also an ideal board for those who are on the go, including in the car. This is something that many customers have commented on, in fact. "I purchased this for my kids to play on our cross country road trip. They loved it. The best part is that I did not have paper and pencils all over the backseat of my car..." says Delilah on Amazon.

The new instructional videos have been created to be easy to understand for children, so that they can get the most out of their own playing. While Tic Tac Toe is a seemingly easy game, it is also one of strategy and logical reasoning, two very important cognitive functions. Being able to play a role in that is one of the things that GrowUpSmart set out to do with their toys and games.
