November 23, 2016 -
GrowUpSmart, an educational games and toy company, has announced that they will be releasing a very special deal on their Plus edition for the Smart Tactics Chess set this coming Black Friday. Full details about the discount will be released on their website's promotion page at http://growupsmart.com/promotions/.

"Chess is a game with a very long history," says Martin Reinhold from GrowUpSmart. "It is a game of strategy, tactics, and math, and one that is often associated with some of the world's most intelligent people. Chess is very important for the cognitive development of children, and we're really happy to see that it is making such a big comeback. We are so happy, in fact, that we will soon announce a very special Black Friday deal on our chess sets for kids. Do make sure that you regularly check our site so that you won't miss out on the deal."

The Plus Edition of the GrowUpSmart chess set is a luxury version that is presented in a beautiful box that also holds all of the pieces. It also comes with a drawstring bag, which makes it easier for players to take the board with them to chess clubs, friends, the park, or anywhere else where they like to play chess. The board is 16" in size and it comes with a special, velvet lined compartment that holds all the pieces.

Meanwhile, along the top edge, elegant algebraic notations have been etched, which enables players to quickly and easily record the game moves. This makes the board equally suitable for novices and master chess players alike, something that customers have commented on as well. "Great beginner chess game. Easy to play and great for beginners. Love it...," says a happy customer on Amazon.

The board is made from wood, which is FSC certified New Zealand pine. It also has a basswood and walnut veneer top. It comes with the aforementioned velvet bag for protection and also an instructional manual. Furthermore, those who purchase it can access a video course for beginners on how to play the game. Fully tested to USA Toy Safety Standards, it looks like this will be a Black Friday best seller.
