November 29, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Northwest Home Buyers, a business in Eagle, ID, specializes specifically in helping inherited house home owners to easily sell their property. Inherited homes cover a complex area of real estate law that must be handled appropriately. Northwest Home Buyers has released new information to demonstrate the importance of working together with an investor when selling an inherited home. Full details of the service offered by this company can be found on <http://www.northwesthomebuyers.com>.

Andrew Wheeler from Northwest Home Buyers says: "There are a number of benefits of working together with an investor like ourselves when it comes to selling an inherited property. These include receiving cash offers, having a seven to 10 day close, and the fact that the home will be ready to sell regardless of its condition. This means that home owners don't have to fix it up first. Plus, by working with a company like us, the seller does not have to pay any realtor commissions."

One of the topics the company has covered in particular is how to sell parents house. Parents often leave their homes to their children, but they often don't know what to do with it themselves. Often, they are unlikely to want to live in it, as they already have a home for themselves. Unfortunately, selling it is a complex process, particularly if the property hasn't been updated in a long time.

Northwest Home Buyers has provided people with a number of tips to make sure they do the right thing with their inherited home. The first is to prepare the home, followed by contacting a lawyer. Unfortunately, inheritances often get messy, with siblings and other surviving relatives arguing over who gets what. Through the "Buy My Home" service offered by Northwest Home Buyers, people can avoid all of those difficulties. "If you find yourself facing foreclosure and unable to find tenants or maybe just inherited a home contact us. In any case, we can help you sell your home in Boise in seven to 10 days," adds Andrew Wheeler. "If you're thinking of selling and are exploring your options, consider selling directly to us."
