November 29, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Minyama, Sunshine Coast based Zero Pest & Pest Control has announced services for eliminating summer pests. The pest control company recently stated that with summer in full swing in Australia, pests are running rampant. "Now that summer is here, out come the pests," says Mick Kinnear with Zero Pest & Pest Control. "The warm weather brings them about."

Kinnear states that ants and cockroaches in particular come to life during the summer months. He states that with warm and wet weather, ants proliferate, looking to nest and reproduce. In addition, cockroaches thrive on warm weather and will breed, causing a small infestation to grow.

"There is a need for a plan for pest control Sunshine Coast residents can depend on," says Kinnear. "These pests are difficult to control and often, residents try over the counter pesticides that cause more harm than they do good, while the bugs remain. Professional treatment is typically needed during summer for these pests, which are very difficult to eradicate."

The company indicates that they provide ant pest control Sunshine Coast residents will find affordable and effective. Kinnear states that the company's technicians always arrive on time and will assess the situation, offering a quote for the job so that the home owner knows what to expect.

In addition, with regards to cockroach pest control Sunshine Coast residents will find that they now have the answer to a difficult problem as cockroaches tend to multiply in mass numbers during these warmer months. Kinnear states that residents should contact them at the very first sighting of a cockroach, as the bugs can multiply quickly. He points out that the company offers expert advice and consultations for the control of cockroaches and that they use the most updated technology available today to rid their clients' homes of these and other pests.

The company states that they do not only exterminate pests, but that they educate clients on risks and prevention regarding certain pests. For example, the company specializes in termite inspection and treatment for residential as well as commercial and industrial clients. Those interested in learning more about the company or the range of summer pest control services they are offering can visit them online.
