Thailand-Explored offers all the best attractions, lodging and food information about the fascinating destination. A recent article details a wealth of information about Walking Street Pattaya.

Pattaya Chon Buri, Thailand: Thailand Explored and John James are pleased to announce the release of their article on Pattaya nightlife. The article is one of many about the experiences which visitors to the city and the country can enjoy. The community has been named as a true 'sin city' with a nightlife that rivals any location in the world. Thailand-explored.com exist to share the experiences of living in the country of Thailand. The website has a comprehensive information on all the things which a traveler and visitor to the country will want to know, see and do.

Walking Street Pattaya is a one kilometer stretch of nightclubs, agogos, restaurants and entertainment of various types which is known for its nightlife. Thailand's entertainment stretch is the best in Southeast Asia. In a relatively short one km strip of beach road are hundreds of bars, Go Go's, restaurants and nightclubs to satisfy any party-goer.

According to John James, speaking to an interviewer recently, 'The majority of visitors to Pattaya are here to party and Walking Street is the epicenter of the nightlife scene. If you are a first time visitor to Pattaya you will be surprised. The area is like nothing else. It is probably one of the greatest concentrations of nightlife venues anywhere. The first thing you will notice is the number of neon lights advertising the venues.'

As the name indicates, the street is closed to vehicles at night and the many visitors to the area walk, jamming the streets and deciding which of the many options will be best to try. There are a variety of venues including bars and open air bars, go go's (Agogo), nightclubs and live music venues are each offered in dozens of locations. The street is also home to several restaurants. The website offers explanations and descriptions so that the first-time visitor knows what to expect.
