Butler Auto Recycling, based in Milton, FL, has announced that they have been named the best Milton junkyard in town. This came after community polls placed a spotlight on local businesses in response to Black Friday and Small Business Saturday. The auto parts recycling company was hailed for a variety of different elements.

Jim Butler, founder of Butler Auto Recycling, says: "I am so proud that we have been voted the best junkyard in Milton. We couldn't have done it without the rest of the community, so this award goes to them as much as what it goes to us. Thank you for your continued trust and support."

There were a number of key things that made the company stand out to residents. Firstly, there is the fact that they have extended opening hours, which is from 8am until 5pm. Secondly, they now also open their doors on Saturdays for the convenience of residents.

What truly enabled the company to become the best in terms of recycling auto parts Milton FL residents can depend on, however, is their dedication to customer service. The company has clearly aimed to build a personal bond and relationship with customers, something that they have truly achieved. For instance, they offer three different standards of warranty to customers. Additionally, they genuinely listen to their customers in an effort to make improvements.

"We recently received a message from a client who asked us whether we also accept vehicle donations," adds Jim Butler. "Previously, we would purchase vehicles of customers and give them the money, but this question got us thinking. Now, therefore, we work together with various charitable organizations who accept vehicle donations to further their service. This is a noteworthy cause, and one that benefits our customers as well, since they can deduct the amount from their tax returns at the end of the fiscal year."

When it comes to the junkyard Milton residents have started to see the auto parts business as an integral part of the community. Not only can they get some auto parts there, they can also sell their vehicle or decide to donate it and help the less fortunate.
