Stephani Analah has launched her collection of designs under the name Starchild's Designs. Her visionary and fantasy pieces are incorporated in a range of products and designs.

Slinger WI: Starchild's Designs and Stephani Analah are pleased to announce the launch of the website dedicated to her Visionary Art designs as reflected in a variety of different products and images. The artistic stylings are classified as New Age, hippy or visionary art. The Reunion collection is described as almost mystical in nature. A wide range of pieces using the Fibonacci sequence is available in the product shop. Other products include fantasy figures, with a balance of movement, light and color.

In describing the collection, the artist explains, "The Visionary Art pieces which incorporate the Fibonacci spiral artwork of the divine (Mother nature) or what some might refer to as god, is a beautiful love affair. Together the woman who represents mother earth (mother nature) is embraced by father sky who is represented by the male figure."

Some of the products which reflect this theme include clothing, pillows, blankets and rugs. There are also posters, stickers and magnets for home decor. Those customers who want to carry out the same theme can choose from tote bags, phone cases and wall decals. A beach towel is another themed product. Flip flops, leggings and a water bottle are perfect for making a personal statement. No sweatshop labor is involved in creating the products in either the US or Canada. Shipping of the products is also free to the United States and Canada.

There are dozens of Fantasy Art products which the artist has created. She describes her work further, saying, "My use of color is one of the aspects that distinguishes my work from those of other artists. I was taught the basics of art by elementary, middle school and high school teachers. Rather than attend college, I have elected to follow my own path. I consider my pieces complete when I can look at them and feel a sense of joy."
