

iProven Launches New Ear Thermometer

December 14, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Medical equipment company iProven, which is based in Barendrecht, NL, is proud to announce the launch of their ear thermometer, currently available on Amazon.co.uk. The company believes that the thermometer is valuable because home health care is becoming increasingly important with the continuously growing costs of medical insurance. Medical insurance policies are also evolving on a nearly daily basis, covering fewer and fewer visits to medical professionals. With this trend, it quickly becomes apparent why it is now so important for people to have high quality medical devices at home.

Lorianne Hubers from iProven says: "One of the values we subscribe to is to create common sense solutions. Our focus is not on adding more buttons, functions, and features. Rather, we aim to achieve simplicity and ease of use, while at the same time educating our customers."

Besides the fact that people would like to have high quality medical devices at home, they also need to have the information they need in order to interpret the readings, and what they should do if they notice certain symptoms. The internet is full of websites providing medical advice, some of which are really good, enabling people to truly understand their health. One of the key elements to find out whether a disease is present, is through accurate temperature readings.

If a fever is present, any other symptoms tend to be more serious as well. As a result, having a high quality thermometer is perhaps one of the most important medical devices to have at home. This thermometer should be able to produce a reliable reading, in as quick and as comfortable a way as possible.

Thanks to the iProven device, people are able to get the most accurate temperature measurement possible, with as little hassle as possible. The high quality ear thermometer has been found to be easy to use, and comes with clear instructions on how to use the device, and also on how to interpret readings. The company aims to be the go to source for at home medical care, thereby ensuring people can get the help they need when they need it, when saving them money by not having to unnecessarily make any physician visits.
