December 19, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The health care industry across the country is significantly overstretched, which is a recurring problem, particularly during the winter period when various viruses affect large parts of the population. Search One Inc., an employment agency in Clearwater, FL, is therefore proud to announce, that they now also offer help in finding medical staffing. Health care organizations that require medical staff are encouraged to visit the website at <http://www.searchonemedicalstaffing.com> for further information.

Bill Pedrey from Search One Inc. says: "We can help save you and your company both time and money by streamlining the sourcing, screening, and hiring process so that you can focus on your other time-sensitive responsibilities. We will schedule interviews with top quality medical professionals that have a proven track record of performance. You will gain access to high-quality candidates that will reduce your turnover rate and improve your company's reputation. Our aim is to help you build a strong team to help you care for your patients and the individuals that make up your team."

Since the implementation of the Affordable Care Act and other types of health care related legislation, the requirements in terms of educational standards of health care staff have been significantly increased. This, for some time, discouraged clinics and other health care organizations from using agencies, as they were worried about them not meeting the necessary standards. However, Search One Inc. has already received many positive agency reviews about their new service. "Working with Bill has been a wonderful experience," says Ellen M. on their website. "He is very receptive to our needs and the timelines we must work with. Excellent communication and timeliness even when I was not able to get back to him as quickly as I would have liked, he never stopped till our needs were met."

Bill Pedrey - CEO Search One, is a senior recruiter who has seen almost every imaginable situation when working to identify, recruit, and encourage retention of healthcare professionals inside organizations, while meeting all the necessary standards. "You'll enjoy how easily we'll work together," he says. "I've been at this for nearly 40 years."
