Sara Lundberg, a wife, lifestyle and food blogger of Budget Savvy Diva recently featured Grace Jerk Seasoning on her 2016 Holiday Gift Guide as a perfect stocking stuffer for the foodies you know.

Lundberg recommended the Grace Jerk Seasoning as a great gift idea for the Christmas season for loved ones who are foodies, chefs or simply love to cook. The blog explained that Grace Jerk Seasoning is not only used on chicken which most people do but can also be used as a jerk marinade or jerk rub for pork, shrimp, fish, beef and more. The blog also explained that the blogger loves to cook at home every day and how she loves the affordable Grace Jerk Seasoning.

"I tried and loved the Grace Jerk Seasoning - and it is super inexpensive too. This would be the perfect stocking stuffer for the foodie in your life," says Lundberg.

Since it was written, the article has been shared on different social media sites such as Facebook, Twitter, and Pinterest. Budget Savvy Diva's Holiday Gift Guide is a yearly compilation of different gift ideas with an intention to make recommendations on what to give your loved ones, friends and relatives for the Christmas season.

"We are honored to be part of the Budget Savvy Diva's Holiday Gift Guide 2016," said Deidre, a Grace Jamaican Jerk Seasoning company representative.

Grace Jamaican Jerk Seasoning is one of several sauces, seasonings and condiments which have been featured on several food blogs, especially since its launch on Amazon. It is authentically made in Jamaica using locally-grown herbs and spices, which comes in mild or hot, allowing consumers to choose the level of spiciness for their dishes. It's availability on Amazon's Marketplace allowed Jamaicans and non-Jamaicans living abroad to be able to create dishes with the same authentic taste of Jamaican recipes.

Grace Jamaican Jerk Seasoning is currently available on Amazon with purchasing options of 1 bottle, 4 bottles or 12 bottles. In addition, as a bonus all purchases come with a digitally delivered recipe book full of jerk recipes.
