New apartments provide active lifestyle for adults over 55

Carlow Senior Apartments offers all the conveniences of home without the hassle of maintenance and upkeep. They have announced that for the holidays, they are offering one month of free rent off 1 and 2 bedroom apartments.

"The people here are really nice," said Carlow Senior Apartment resident Marva. "We go to church together, and everything is very convenient."

New senior apartment for rent comes fully equipped with energy-efficient appliances including a washer and dryer. Located near a shopping area, the property also includes a walking trail, craft room and fully equipped fitness center to maintain an active lifestyle.

A one or two bedroom apartment would accommodate a single adult over 55 or a couple who wants to enjoy all the activities without the care and maintenance of a single family home. Two bedroom units allow for a guest room, office or workshop.

With snowfall predicted to be at record highs this season in Idaho, a senior apartment for rent would alleviate adults over 55 from the hassle of shoveling snow off their driveways or having to deal with the maintenance expense of burst pipes or heating unit issues.

"We didn't want my dad to spend another winter shut in his house by himself because he was afraid to fall outside shoveling the snow off the driveway," said the daughter of one Carlow Senior Apartment resident. "We decided to get him a new affordable senior apartment home for rent."

Getting the first month's rent free can be a great holiday present for the whole family, a spokesman for Carlow Senior Apartments said. The senior adult gets a new home around new friends, and the family gets the peace of mind knowing they are safe and around other active adults keeping them engaged and vibrant.

Because the washer and dryer is included, a new resident just needs to move their essentials and a few pieces of furniture to be fully equipped and ready to begin their active lifestyle in a community of peers just like them.
