Shor & Levin Now Offering Help For Amtrak Crash Victims

June 09, 2015

June 09, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Bulldog Lawyers, also known as Shor & Levin, have offered assistance for those who were involved in the Amtrak crash. The firm has completed a YouTube video outlining the crash, current lawsuits on file regarding the case, and how they plan on helping those passengers and employees who were injured during the crash.

Some of the more recent press surrounding the Amtrak crash has suggested that the engineer was using a cell phone when the accident occurred. Evidence of this type of behavior could result in more severe lawsuits in the future, but for the time being, The Bulldog Lawyers believe that the victims of the crash should be seeking compensation through injury law firms or workers compensation lawyers. They have invited anybody involved in the crash to Watch Full Video or Click here for more information on how they can help injured workers and their families resume some normalcy in their lives.

The firm has long been passionate about how much the residents of Pennsylvania require true legal aid when undergoing cases of this nature. They have suggested that large corporations, such as Amtrak, as well as insurance agencies, which may provide coverage for such companies or individuals, will often try to work their way out of making any payments or compensation to those who are injured. Shor & Levin hope to rectify this by helping with the entire court process and getting victims what they deserve in terms of financial retribution. They have said the following in regards to helping those in need:

"Trust your instincts...you do need a lawyer. When you're injured at the workplace your employer's lawyer and insurance company will not have your best interests in mind. The insurance company is paying thousands of dollars to strip you of benefits as soon as possible. Shor & Levin will invest in you and in winning your case."

This is not the first case that The Bulldog Lawyers have exposed through their YouTube channel. They encourage the PA public to follow along with their many videos and publications as they work to inform the country about all of the travesties occurring throughout various industries across the state and the country. They have explained that they care a great deal about helping those who cannot help themselves, but encourage anybody who has been through an accident of this type to come forward as soon as possible. In cases of workers compensation or personal injury, it is important for victims and their lawyers to file as soon as they can, as it often leads to a faster and more secure settlement.

The firm offers a number of support and communication options through their website's contact page, including real time live chat with a firm representative, email, and an easy to complete online form. They have suggested that even those people who are unsure as to whether or not their case warrants a suit, should get in touch, as many times these cases can go unnoticed until it is too late.
