Albert Road Opticians, an optician based in Wilmslow, Cheshire, has released their latest lens reduces migraines system. The lenses have been designed to help those people who spend excessive amounts of time looking at screens, which applies to virtually the entire population. Through these lenses, it is hoped people will be able to enjoy the best of both worlds: the ability to use electronic devices and the ability to avoid migraines.

The world is becoming increasingly digital and virtual. Technology is advancing so rapidly that it is difficult to keep up with it. However, Mr Oberai states that he has noticed an increase in the number of clients that attend his business complaining from visual stress. This includes light sensitivity, migraines and headaches. He believes that this is due to the fact that the screens of the electronic devices in use today all use LED's. LED light is incredibly powerful and helps to conserve energy. The downside, however, is that they also emit high levels of "blue light", which is not natural to the eye. Blue light scatters most all types of light and this can lead to eyestrain, headaches and general light sensitivity.

Research has shown a direct correlation between visual stress and excessive use of LED lights. However, research has also shown that there is a solution. Glasses can be covered with what is known as "Crizal Prevencia". This is a completely clear coating so it is not visible to the naked eye and doesn't alter overall vision. It does, however, stop blue light from getting to the eye, thereby reducing stress on the eye.

The Wilmslow optician was initially critical. However, various positive testimonials convinced him to start offering Crizal Prevencia to his customers.

"Over the past 5 years I have suffered from debilitating migraines", says customer Mr I.C. from Wilmslow. "Having seen various doctors and opticians over the years the only solution offered was to lie down in a dark room for 48 hours until they passed. During the last attack I decided to head for to a new optician on the off chance a fresh pair of eyes may be able to help. A web search led me to Albert Road where I was professionally and comprehensively examined by Deepak Oberai. Deepak identified that I spend most of my life in front of a screen of some sort (computer, Ipad, Iphone) and suggested trying Crizal Prevencia lenses. At this point I was willing to try anything even if this course of action did seem a little far fetched. I've now had the glasses for five months with no migraine attacks, this was way beyond my expectations. I wear the lenses pretty much all the time. Thanks Deepak you truly have changed my enjoyment of life."
