January 06, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

PRC Roofing in Houston, Texas, has announced the celebration of their upcoming 38th year in business. The company was established in 1979 and has been providing commercial roofing Houston to area businesses ever since.

Tony Delgado, the leading expert in PRC's sheet metal division says, "At PRC Roofing Company, Inc., our motto is, and has always been safety, quality, and production. Our website has been developed as your resource to review information about our company and our wide range of services."

Tony Delgado says that the company's immediate goals have always been to achieve a high degree of professionalism with regards to the installation of commercial and industrial roofing as well as sheet metal systems. He states that one of the things that has kept PRC Roofing in business for so many years is their dedication to customer satisfaction. The company works with a number of clients in and around the Houston area, and offers a wide variety of roofing options to meet a number of specifications.

"Our ability to produce and manage a wide variety of product installations on time and within budget assures our clientele excellent moisture protection, reasonable costs, and long-term customer service beyond the original application," points out Tony Delgado. "We will always work to ensure that the commercial and industrial roofing residents need are provided to their complete satisfaction."

PRC Roofing has accomplished thousands of roofing construction projects throughout the State of Texas, ranging from minimum costs to multi-million dollar amounts, each offering the same degree of expertise and service. PRC Roofing Company, Inc. is a second generation family owned Minority Business Enterprise (MBE). It is solely owned and operated by Mr. Daniel A. Delgado. Currently, PRC employs approximately 30 full-time personnel within their administrative, roofing and sheet metal divisions.

The company states that they can provide tile roofing homeowners are looking for, as well as various other roofing products for building owners, maintainers, architects, engineers, designers, consultants, contractors, property managers and building officials.

Business owners in the area who are interested in learning more about the company and the wide range of roofing services that they provide to commercial and industrial clients can visit them on their official website.
