LocalWinos.com offers reviews, suggestions and explanations about products related to wines. The recent review and blog article rates and describes wine coolers.

Laporte CO: Local Winos and Jackson Gerano are pleased to announce the launch of their new website and blog article devoted to the topic of wine-related products. A thorough description and review of top wine fridges and coolers is the recent article posted to the website. Eight appliances are described in detail, in various categories. The styles include under-counter, built in, dual zone and others. The article also considers the role of budget or cost in its recommendations.

Wine coolers are, as the name indicates, appliances which bring bottled wines to the optimum temperature and holds them there. Some of the features which should be considered before selecting a cooler include the number of bottles which are to be stored, how much space is required for the cooler and the level of accessibility. In addition, the appearance is important to some buyers. For almost everyone, find a price that fits in the available budget is a limiting factor.

The top eight list presented by the reviewer include brands of Whynter, Magic Chef, Wine Enthusiast, Haier, Thermoelectric, Igloo and EdgeStar. The bottle capacity of this group ranges from four bottles to as many as 48 bottles. There are appliances which are priced under $100 and others which are several times that price. Options which are mentioned in the reviews include dual zones, double doors, reverse opening directions and others. Appearance is a subjective category, but is also a part of the factors which are included in the reviews. The noise level is considered in the descriptions.

The selections which are provided with more extensive reviews include the Whynter BWR-281DZ Dual Zone Built-In Wine Refrigerator; Magic Chef MCWC6B 6-Bottle; Wine Enthusiast Silent 48 Bottle; Haier 18-Bottle Dual Zone Curved Door with Smoked Glass; Thermoelectric ? NewAir AW-280E 28-Bottle; IGLOO FRW041 4-Bottle; Edgestar 34 Bottle Free Standing and EdgeStar 36 Bottle. Detailed descriptions and positive features are mentioned in each of these models.
