

Awards Center Calls for New Product Ideas Regarding 2017 Promotional Needs

January 05, 2017

January 05, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Louisville, Ky. ? Awards Center, a leading awards shop in Louisville, KY, is in the process of developing new product ideas for 2017 and needs the help of its customers.

As the new year begins, different product ideas are being tossed around by various companies in the area. Businesses are constantly searching for ways to promote their image and Awards Center wants to be a part of the brainstorming.

?It?s a new year and with that comes a refreshed, new vision for many organizations,? Awards Center's owner, Jason Malone, said. ?We want to be sure that we know the needs of these companies so that we can pick and choose products to craft that will be more meaningful in the long run.?

Being in the promotional products industry allows for Awards Center to get an early look at this year?s new products. The awards store in Louisville, KY is quite interested in the promotional initiatives of the businesses in the area, so it urges all those with promotional needs to reach out and provide input on the development of new product lines.

?I feel as though there?s no better way to start the year off then by knowing exactly what the public wants from the beginning,? Malone said. ?This will ensure that we are creating the best, most needed products for the companies we work with.?
