When there is water damage Las Vegas residences and businesses need prompt action to prevent worsening damage due to water and mold. The team at IRS is specially trained to deal with insurance carriers, or to help with handling property damage issues when there is no insurance coverage. IRS specialists work with homeowners, business owners and managers to get things back to normal. The experts at IRS work with each client to answer questions about water damage and damage restoration.

The company never collects money up front and many times can help customers without the need of out-of-pocket expenses. Rapid responses is critical when there is water damage. Failure to properly and efficiently clean up the flooded home or fire-damaged businesses can cause problems in the future. The company offers no charge for a service estimate. Dealing with the risk of mold, fire or flood is not as simple as mopping up water and drying the carpet.

According to a spokesperson for the company, "Leaving your property wet allows the water to spread to unaffected areas and causes more damage including mold. Hidden moisture may still be present in your walls. Smoke, soot, and other residual compounds left behind after a fire are acidic in nature and may cause permanent damage to your property if left unmitigated. We are fully certified to complete water removal and restoration of areas damaged by flood, fire or other water damage."
