

Sliding Miracle Shelves DIY Kits Featured On Houzz.com

January 13, 2017

January 13, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Miracle Shelves Store just launched online last week and it has already appeared on DIY blogs and kitchen and bathroom websites. The company was founded by RJ Shaw, and he was blown away by the reception:

"This has been an excellent start to a business dreamed up just over a year ago..."

Mr. Shaw was given the chance to be interviewed for the website Houzz.com. He spoke about how his company could help homeowners looking to upgrade their storage spaces.

These pull out shelves allow people to store items in their cupboards or pantries with ease. If someone has a little DIY in them, they can work with these shelves to blend them with whatever their kitchen or bathroom layout is.

"We are even seeing people use them in their garage," added Shaw.

Miracle Shelves officially launched on the 2nd of January, 2017.

Other notable blogs and home design sites are HomeTalk and Archilovers. Mr. Shaw says that this launch has gone over well because people really want to work with DIY kits that have shelving applications.

Kits come with quality steel rails to mount custom pull-outs to existing cabinets. The rails to hold as much as 100 lbs. There's a bottom featuring melamine that makes the simple to clean.

An installation video if customers want to learn more on YouTube. This will teach what to expect from the shelving units and how to work with them.
