Southern Piano Service's Blanton Bendall, a popular piano tuner and piano specialist, is once again adding to his service offerings in all of Central Virginia as well as in Richmond: Piano Restoration and Piano Repair.

For years, Bendall has provided a range of piano services to his clients in Central Virginia, and increasingly in the entire Greater Richmond area as well. In addition to piano tuning, piano moving and storing, he also would repair pianos. What most people don't know is that he also is an expert in piano restoration.

When Bendall repairs a piano, he tends to fix small things that might be amiss. These could be sticking keys, a broken string, or other such issues. Piano restoration, however, is much more involved.

When Bendall restores a piano, he generally takes it apart and rebuilds many of the worn-out parts so the piano will literally be restored to its new beauty, from the inside out. Not only will it sound wonderful once it is restored - it also looks the part.

Bendall works with clients in the entire City of Richmond, and the greater Richmond Area as well as the Central Virginia area.

"Not every piano is worth restoring," Bendall says. "However, if it is an antique piano from a high quality manufacturer, it may well be worth restoring. Many people also choose to restore their piano if they have a deep emotional connection to it, such as if it is a family heirloom."

Blanton also works with churches and schools throughout the Richmond and Central Virginia area. Both schools and churches are often the recipients of donated pianos. That's how sometimes valuable though neglected pianos can find their way to new owners.

To reach their full potential, these pianos may sometimes require piano restoration services before they can be played. In return, the church will then have a very valuable and beautiful-sounding piano for many years to come.

In addition to restoration, a piano might also require restringing if the old strings are worn out. Since both services are highly involved and time consuming, Bendall recommends to have them both done at the same time.

On his website, SouthernPianoService.com, Bendall offers numerous informative articles about the various aspects of his work, and provides detailed advice about caring for a piano. As a result, it will remain in top playing condition and bring much joy to its owners for many years.

Bendall is happy to talk with piano owners who wonder whether their piano needs restoration or restringing - or whether it needs any other repairs. His phone number is 804-677-2416. The best way to get in touch with him is by sending him a text message. More information about piano restoration is here:
