January 23, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Simple Recipe Pro founders Jim Sabellico and Lexi Davidson announce the release date of their upcoming recipe plugin. The plugin, which aims to provide an all in one solution for food bloggers is set to be released on February 3rd, 2017.

Farmingdale, NY: Simple Recipe Pro is pleased to announce that an official launch date of February 3rd, 2017 has been set for the release of their new recipe plugin. Beginning in 2016, the dynamic duo behind Simple Recipe Pro which consists of Jim Sabellico of J. Louis and Lexi Davidson of Lexi's Clean Kitchen have been developing this recipe plugin to solve the technical needs of food bloggers everywhere.

According to Lexi, "After years of blogging and wanting more from my recipe plug-ins, it was time to make a change to the food blogging industry. That change is Simple Recipe Pro. It is so much more than the average recipe card plug-ins out there. Every feature you could want for your blog is included for no extra cost, and the customizing and personal live support for each member is like having your own personal web expert on call. This is the recipe plugin for food bloggers."

The recipe plugin which offers users access to a number of features essential to running a food blog such as advanced recipe indexes, filterable recipe grids, live nutritional data, custom styling options, unmatched 24/7 support, social sharing and more will be available with a monthly or yearly license option.

Food bloggers who are interested in getting access to Simple Recipe Pro are encouraged to visit the website and join the email list to get early access and an exclusive launch day special.
