January 23, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Official Van Lines offers a business that recognizes the value of environmentally friendly business practices. They have announced their plans for going green and incorporating recycling practices.

Miami FL: Official Van Lines and Vic Sab are pleased to announce that after seventeen years in business, they are taking the steps of going green. The firm is promoting a more environmentally friendly approach to business practices. One of the practices that is part of the green movement is the recycling of materials, rather than placing them into landfills. Attention to fuel usage is another way in which the company participates in helping the planet.

The South Florida moving service team has been operating for more than seventeen years and has the knowledge and expertise to successfully help to plan and implement the move across the city or across the country. The complexity of a small or large move can lead to a stress and frustration for anyone who is in the process. The right moving firm can make a significant difference in how hassle-free the relocation is.

In addition to the planet awareness, the moving firm offers free in-home estimates for full-service packing and unpacking services. The professional uniformed staff takes care of the crating of antiques and fine art, debris removal and disconnecting and connecting appliances. All staff members are subjected to thorough background checks. Drivers and crews are always Allied certified.

Additional services which are provided by the company includes short and long-term storage, quality packing supplies and padded blankets for furniture. Vehicle shipping is supplied as needed. The company takes the additional step of delivering unwanted food to charity organizations. The team members are available to work weekends.

Customers who need storage facilities for household or office items can be accommodated. Long distance moves and residential moves are handled with equal expertise. The professionals at the van lines also provide commercial moving actions. Satisfaction for each move is assured by the company service professionals.
