Flip Funding has been providing fast, easy financing to real estate investors seeking a dependable capital source with competitive rates, terms and impeccable service.

since 2013. The company funds more than $20,000,000 each year on this venture alone, and have shared many of their secrets to success already through their blog. The website also covers a number of opportunities and options that investors in today's market have to increase their income and make good choices. Topics such as Hard Money, Transactional Funding, Private Lender Investing, and the Funding Processes are all included in their breakdown of the lending world.

Roderick Stanback has explained that he began the company as a way of being able to treat clients the way that he had wanted to be treated when he was starting out. He focuses on three main points to help others find success, such as values, integrity, and flexibility. With these three practices he finds that he can offer investors and private lenders the patience and guidance necessary to increase success, honest opinions and advice even when the truth is tough to take, and product and services that are tailored to assist private money lenders to reach the financial health they require and desire.

The Best Real Estate Investing Advice Ever with Joe Fairless is available for listening through iTunes. The program is offered to the public for free, and currently holds a number of titles and topics to choose from, covering a series that is meant to assist investors, teach non-investors more about investing, and generally explain what is important in the world of real estate investing. The show invites viewers of all ages and backgrounds to take part in the show, saying:

"Join Joe Fairless as he talks to successful real estate professionals and they give you their best advice ever with none of the fluff. Joe controls over $7,000,000 in real estate but started with $0 in 2009. He went from buying single family homes worth $35,000 and moved up raising money and buying large apartment communities with investors. He has made mistakes, money and friends along the way."

Roderick Stanback and all of Flip Funding is hoping for a big turnout online, with listeners tuning in and downloading the show. They encourage new listeners and current clients to come hear what the CEO of this private lending firm has to say about real estate and what it can do to bring financial success.
