Soap.Club in Vaughan, Ontario, offers a variety of products for dogs. The company recently announced the addition of a new dog spa shampoo that is designed to be safe for pets while offering effective cleaning.

Connie Farrar, founder and owner of Soap.Club, says, "You always wonder about the best shampoo to use on your dogs, as all dog owners do. We've developed our soaps to be all natural so there are no worries of allergic reactions or harmful ingredients that could hurt your beloved pets."

The company offers shampoo for dogs that contain natural ingredients designed to avoid irritated skin and itching. Farrar states that their soap bars contain no rough or sharp edges, which make them easy to handle while bathing dogs.

"It's important that you are as comfortable during your dog's bath as he is," Farrar says. "We have designed what we feel are the most comfortable soap bars for you to use for his bath time, while also ensuring that the bars contain only ingredients that will help to promote healthy skin and coat."

Farrar says that the spa soaps do not contain chemicals or coloring and are non-GMO. They contain only natural colors in addition to healthy oils like coconut, soybean, and olive, as well as organic shea butter, water, and other natural additives. She states that pet owners who want to protect their dogs from irritated skin due to chemicals and harsh detergents will likely appreciate the new line of spa soaps as they are a healthier alternative to mass produced soaps found in most pet stores.

Each bar of soap offered by Soap.Club is cured for up to six weeks, and made with only natural ingredients which the company states give it a soft gentle lather, much like a moisturizing lotion. Farrar states that they use a cold process to ensure a higher quality and to help prolong the scent of each bar. Each bar sold by the company is made by hand and packaged to ensure freshness.

Those interested in seeing the new line of dog shampoo can visit the company on their official website.
