

Sing See Soon Floral Launches New Hand Bouquets

January 31, 2017

January 31, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Sing See Soon Singapore, a florist based in Singapore, has announced the launch of their newest products, which are hand bouquets. The company provides a variety of floral products for weddings, gifts, and other occasions where flowers are needed.

"We are pleased to have added these beautiful new hand bouquets to our floral product lineup," says Sebastian Ee, founder and owner of Sing See Soon Floral.

Sebastian Ee states that they aim to be the florist to call for all events including weddings, graduations, and others. The Sing See Soon online bloom store has been in the floral industry for more than five generations, and continues to add new products to their lineup from time to time. The floral company provides flowers of all types, offering seasonal bouquets as well as those that are constantly in season. Ee recommends visiting them online to learn more about what flowers are available at different times of the year.

"We just want to keep it fresh; no pun intended," says Ee. "Adding new products is just what we do based on customer suggestions and recommendations. These hand bouquets are certainly not going to be the last new item on our list and we cannot wait to showcase our newest floral products."

Those interested in seeing the wide selection of floral products that the company offers can visit the online bloom store, where all of their products are currently showcased. The company has a team of floral designers who possess many years of experience that combine functional and technical expertise to bring customers the freshest and most unique bouquets in the world. Ee states that their designers are the key to delivering top professional floral design work for their customers, and that they can create virtually any bouquet that customers may need.

Ee states that customers can visit them on their official website to view the new designs of hand bouquets they have launched or to gain more information about the company, their policies, and other products that they design. Those interested can also contact Sing See Soon on their official website for ordering information or to learn more about special event bouquets.
