

Sing See Soon Floral, Singapore Launches New Flowers Line

January 27, 2017

January 27, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Sing See Soon Floral, a Singapore based online florist introduces its new flowers line to cater the demand of floral services. The new flowers line will be a first of its kind in flower bouquets and targeted for high end customers.

"We are introducing a new line of flowers based on the demand of our existing clientele base who only love the best of bouquets. All our flowers will come from the best florists across the world and will be targeting premium customers; so you can expect iconic and elegant flowers from this line," Vanessa, PR manager of the company said.

As per the release from the official website, the new line of flowers will also be available to book online from Sing See Soon Online Bloom Store. The new flowers line is uniquely designed and will have slightly bigger bouquets, and will all be arranged according to the feelings or occasions they are best meant for. Besides that, Sing See Soon will continue to deliver flowers with stylish gift covers and designs as they are used to.

"The bouquets might be bigger, the arrangements might feel unique, but they will be priced at the affordable rates our products are known for. The quality of our services will also remain status quo, so that we can continue having a great relationship with our clients," Vanessa added.

According to Vanessa, "Sing See Soon Singapore has set a benchmark with their fresh and innovative approach and the new floral line will set a new trend with their exquisite designs and highest quality of flowers. We target to make this new range a number one choice in wedding, bridal or any other events. We invite everyone to contact Sing See Soon and ask for brochure of our new range."

Being in business for the last 30 years, singseesoon.com has since risen to be a top destination for royal families, socialites and companies needing floral décor assistance. Vanessa credits this success to great teamwork and the experience her team of creative designers puts in their work. In a recent interview, Vanessa also credited her connections with the best floral farms as yet another reason for the success.

"We have come a long way; thanks to our team of designers, who have always displayed great teamwork. Their functional and technical expertise has helped the company to come out with an innovative floral design work. Our success also goes to our support team who believes in providing outstanding customer service which further increases the value of our service. There are great floral farms across the countries that have always been loyal to us. And this also has helped the company stay on top of the line for so long," Vanessa said.

With the new launch of flower lines, Sing See Soon Singapore now hopes to satisfy the needs of a wider client base in the premium segment and aim to better their relationship with clients further.
