Bay Area Movers, Inc. a San Jose, California based commercial and residential moving firm has published a guide to help corporate businesses looking to relocate office. They have released the guide following a recent complaint raised by a company that had lost millions in revenues after a moving company mishandled their items.

The guide published by the Bay Area Movers, noted that there are defined steps every business requires to do before relocating. According to Dawson, operation direction of Bay Area Movers Inc., every company must publish a press release detailing the benefits of moving their offices to the new location. This, Dawson says should help a company?s clientele feel valued as well as take the news positively.

?If you want to move your business, begin by notifying your customers officially. Release a press document for instance and detail all the benefits your new move will have on them. Specify the location you are moving to, the floor number and give reasons as to why the new floor will help you serve the customers better. If possible quote your company?s CEO opinion about the new move,? Kyle Dawson noted.

The guide has ready reference of 101 ready checklists point which would help corporate business to understand the procedure to follow. The guide starts with basic point by citing carefulness and attention to detail before hiring any moving company. In addition, the guide mentions affordability as well as the importance of communication support.

But in all honesty, Dawson stands out as an authority in this area, noting that he owns a moving company. The company has been in the industry for quite a while now, and has grown to a point where they handle long distance moving as well.

While speaking on this occasion, Dawson said ?We are known for our credibility in the L.A, East Bay and North Bay areas. We prides ourselves in having a rich and experience team of movers who can handle home or commercial items efficiently. This has helped us to become top choice company locally.?

To answer what has made them popular in moving companies Bay Area, Mr. Hoovers, PR manager of Bay Area Movers, Inc. said, ?I think our customers love us because of our add on services like free moving estimates, handling their furniture while they renovate, complete package services and timely movements?.
