Women around the world are looking for new ways to reduce stretch marks and rejuvenate skin in a way that also reduces the invasiveness of traditional body contouring. LUMEN Laser Center in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania is now offering non-invasive body contouring in the form of CoolSculpting and Fraxel services.

Approved by the FDA, CoolSculpting is a way to eliminate fat cells in the body through crystallization. Unlike other methods of fat removal, this process of crystallization is specialized in that it specifically targets fat cells. Other cells and even the skin over the fat cells are left completely untouched.

LUMEN Laser Center says, "CoolSculpting is the wave of the future. It is currently one of the best ways to get rid of fat safely and quickly as well." A patient can visit the center, receive a CoolSculpting treatment and return to their daily life immediately after. The fat cells are removed from the body within a period of weeks to months (however long the individual body takes to process out dead cells).

CoolSculpting is a way to contour the body in a way that is entirely new and also capable of getting rid of fat without surgery or damage to other cells outside the specifically chosen fat cells. This is what's making it a popular new way to enhance the look of all parts of the body. Through the process of eliminating fat cells it helps the body to also ease the look of stretch marks and lines.

Fraxel, on the other hand, is being touted as one of the ways to remove the signs of aging. It is bringing changes to the aging population with their concerns of wrinkles, age spots, fine lines and photo aging and also to those of all ages who are concerned about scars and smoothing out the skin. It is not only for areas on the face either, as these lasers can also be applied to the body in order to remove stretch marks.

With the application of fractional lasers (a safer technology which is made of light energy only), Fraxal targets the collagen already being produced in the body. This targeted application of light is capable of stimulating the production of collagen, helping to increase your body's ability to produce more, therefore correcting skin blemishes more quickly and more naturally.

Philadelphia's cosmetic laser treatment center provides both of these procedures to patients who want to look younger every day. The results have been reviewed as "excellent" and have been reported to last many years. For those who have been looking for a non-invasive way to make the changes they want for their body, CoolSculpting and Fraxel are the ways to go, according to a spokesperson for the company.
