The Law Office Of Jonathan Johnson offers client services and legal representation for a variety of mass tort cases. The cases include lawsuits for a number of drugs and products.

Atlanta GA: Atlanta Lawyer Jonathan W. Johnson and the legal team are pleased to announce that they are currently in the process of signing up clients in a number of tort case lawsuits. The purpose of class action suits is to provide individuals the opportunity to hold some of the biggest private companies around the world responsible for redress of wrongs done by the firms. Such actions require the assistance and knowledge of an experienced class action lawyer.

Class action lawsuits bring hundreds or thousands of people together to hold corporations responsible. The sheer numbers of plaintiffs gives the case a higher level of credibility and merit and forces the defendant to pay attention. For people who have used any of the products on the list and have suffered illness as a result, contacting the firm is the first step in the process.

According to Jonathan Johnson, speaking for the firm, "Unsafe products and dangerous medications are responsible for a large number of injuries and illnesses every year in Georgia. We believe that manufacturers and distributors have the responsibility to provide safe and effective products. Additionally, we believe that these companies must describe all risks associated with their products and drugs, and provide complete instructions regarding product use."

"Defective products may cause injuries for many different reasons," he continues. "The manufacturer may have failed to properly test the product's safety, failed to include adequate instructions and warnings, or falsely advertised the product's capabilities."

The list of lawsuits at present includes talcum powder, Bair Hugger and IVC Filter, Drug products lawsuits include Taxotere, Xarelto & Pradaxa, Trazadone, Risperdal and Risperdal & Invega. The legal team is able to help clients with a wide range of issues related to the defective or questionable products.

Every step of the legal process is directed and supported.
