

PRC Roofing And Sheet Metal Celebrates Company Milestone

March 01, 2017

March 01, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

PRC Roofing and Sheet Metal in Houston, Texas, has announced that they have recently celebrated a business milestone. The company, which was founded in 1979, has surpassed its 38th year in business.

"Our immediate goal is and has always been to achieve a high degree of professionalism for the installation of commercial and industrial roofing and sheet metal systems," says Tony Delgado with PRC Roofing. "Our goals have not changed in nearly 40 years and we don't plan to change them in the future. We are pleased to have been serving Houston businesses for this long and look forward to 30 plus more years in the industry."

PRC Roofing caters to built up roofs and commercial roofing systems. Delgado states that they have been providing safety, quality, and production since 1979 and have been voted as the number one commercial roofing company in Houston and the Greater Houston region. PRC Roofing carries a high level of insurance and is bonded for all jobs performed.

The company is a second generation, family owned business, solely owned and operated by Daniel Delgado. More than 30 full-time employees make up the administrative, roofing and sheet metal divisions.

"We work with building owners, architects, designers, contractors, building officials, and many other customers," says Delgado. "We understand that you put a lot of time and money into your business and our goal is to provide you with a new roof that bears the right design, quality materials, and proper drainage needed to keep your business operating smoothly."

Delgado states that the company has spent the past three decades offering flat roof repairs as well as metal roofing, modified roofing, built up and commercial roofing repairs, among other services. After installation services are also provided including annual inspections, maintenance, and product and labor warranties. The company states that their full line of services are designed to offer peace of mind to customers and are one of the reasons that they have been successful in the industry for nearly four decades.
