February 23, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Cheyenne, Wyoming based jewelry company Baubelle has recently launched a line of bracelets that are designed to empower women. The company has revealed that their "She Believed She Could So She Did" bracelet has become a very popular birthday gift idea. Baubelle states that sales of the bracelet has increased substantially and says that customers have indicated that they are mostly purchasing the bracelet as a gift for birthdays.

The company's bracelets are available on Amazon and come in a number of statement pieces. Each bracelet offers a stylish expandable wire charm style with a message meant to empower and strengthen women. The bracelets are plated in 18 karat gold and are available in gold, white gold, or rose gold. One size fits most teens and adults.

"Our bracelets empower women," says Sarah Evren from Baubelle. "They are designed to offer motivation and we've had many customers telling us that they make the perfect birthday present for wives, sisters, mothers and friends."

"Our bracelets are high quality," adds Evren. "They will not rust nor tarnish and they are hypoallergenic, so they are perfect for any woman in your life who maybe needs a bit of encouragement."

Evren states that multiple customers have contacted the company, stating that the bracelets were purchased as birthday gifts and says that customers have also revealed that the gift recipients were very happy with the bracelet. She says that because the bracelets are hypoallergenic, they are perfect for those with metal allergies and they will not leave a green mark or discoloration on the skin.

Sarah Evren says that what makes the bracelets even more perfect as a gift is the fact that they are delivered in the company's signature turquoise and gold slide out box that is filled with shimmery fabric. Each bracelet is also backed with a money back guarantee. Evren states that any gift recipient who is not happy with her bracelet can return it within one full year for a full refund. Those interested in learning more can see the full line of charm bracelets available on Amazon.com or visit the company on their official website.
