Baubelle, a jewelry company in Cheyenne, Wyoming, has reported that its Love the Life You Live bracelet has become a huge seller on the Amazon marketplace mainly because it is being used as a gift for birthdays. The company offers a line of charm bracelets, each with a special message of empowerment for women, and states that their bracelets are virtually flying off the shelves.

"We're excited that the bracelets have become so popular," says Sarah Evren, a spokesperson for Baubelle. "We've had so many customers contact us to say that they purchased the bracelet as a birthday gift and that those who have received it really loved it."

Evren explains that one reason the bracelet has become a popular birthday present is because each bracelet holds a different message, and there are currently three different styles available. Each is available through the Amazon marketplace, and in gold, rose gold, or white gold with charms that offer a special message of inspiration for women of all ages.

"Teens and adults love them," Evren reports. "We've also heard from senior citizens who have purchased the bracelets for their wives and even mothers who bought them for their daughters. Customers tell us that every woman who receives one of the bracelets absolutely adores it."

Baubelle states that all of their jewelry are made from high quality materials. The inspirational bracelets are designed not to fade nor tarnish, so they do not leave any discoloration on the wrist. They are plated in 18 karat gold and come in one size that the company states will fit most teenagers and adult women.

The company states that the bracelets are also hypoallergenic, so they are a good choice for women who are typically allergic to metals and will not cause any irritation or breakouts. They are shipped in the company's signature box; a turquoise and gold box that features a satiny fabric pullout handle where the bracelet slides out. Evren says that this box and its slide out feature are very popular and have also contributed as to why the bracelets have become such a popular gift item.

The bracelets, with each one containing a message of hope and faith, can be seen on the Amazon.com website as well as on the company's official website.
