Nectar Sleep offers a business model that removes the middleman to ensure top comfort and quality at the best prices. The mattress comes with a 365 day home trial.

San Mateo CA: Nectar Sleep is pleased to announce that their business model is designed to offer the most comfortable bed possible to each and every customer. The company is 100 percent employee owned, which allows for elimination of the middleman costs between factory and delivery. Every effort is put into designing and building a comfortable mattress which doesn't scrimp on quality. There are no retail store markups or salesperson commissions added to the price.

According to a representative for the company, Nectar has won more awards in the last two years than most of the big guys put together. The Nectar Sleep reviews posted on the website are from a range of customers both in age and physical circumstances. Uniformly, the praise the comfort of the mattress, even when there multiple issues involved with the customers' sleeping habits. Several of the reviewers mention that the mattress doesn't cause them to overheat during the night. They stay cool and comfortable throughout the sleep period.

The mattress home trial is designed to allow each customer the time to determine if the statements made in the online sales material and in the reviews from other customers are accurate and believable. A home trial consists of delivery of the mattress from the factory to the home of the customer, where it can be tested and used for a full 365 days. This trial length means that the mattress is tested and used in every season of the year and under a wide range of conditions.

The Nectar mattress is designed to fit on any style of bed frame and comes in six different sizes. The company is fully employee-owned so the cost of the mattress avoids retail mark-ups, sales commissions and expensive ad campaigns. The focus of the owners is always on providing the best quality mattress and the most affordable price.
