Milton, Fla. ? Butler's Auto Recycling, a used auto parts store in Milton, FL, has been graciously given the opportunity to assist the Escambia Fire Rescue with improving their extrication techniques. Thanks to Butler's generosity, the first responders of Escambia County will be even more prepared in the event of an emergency.

Practicing extrication techniques takes time, patience, and cars, preferably used or junk models. The tough part is finding the heap of junk to operate on when it's time perform the drills. So Butler's Auto Recycling, being a go-to store for use auto parts, found it pertinent to help the Escambia Fire Rescue team in their extrication training by providing the firemen with salvaged vehicles.

"Our team here at Butler's is honored to assist our county's first responders using this distinct method," Owner Jim Butler said. "Providing these salvaged vehicles to utilize for training will ensure that the Escambia firefighters are ready when it's time to save lives."

Butler's Auto Recycling strives on a consistent basis to be the top auto store in Milton, FL. The team of mechanics is constantly generating ideas to make a customer's life easier and the livelihood of the community stronger. Working with Escambia Fire Rescue will prove to be a worthy accomplishment in the years to come. The citizens of Escambia County, including the employees of Butler's, can now rest easy knowing that a highly trained skilled of firefighters is ready and willing to assist in any disaster.

"We know that these training techniques will strengthen the skills of our firefighter team, but most importantly it will be an extra added element that may be the key to saving a life," Butler said.
