

Plumbing Company in Mobile, AL, Stresses a Woman Worker?s Value to the Plumbing Industry

February 27, 2017

February 27, 2017 -
Mobile, Ala. ? Mr. Rooter Plumbing of Mobile, a leading provider of plumbing in Mobile, AL, is stressing how important female plumbers are to the service industry. Even though not a typical thing to see, the team at Mr. Rooter knows that woman plumbers are a lot more advantageous than previously thought of.

Many people who call a plumbing technician to their location anticipate seeing a male, dressed for the part, crossing their lawn to do business. It?s the regular scene and has come to be a norm in society. Mr. Rooter Plumbing of Mobile is considering different options for the plumbing industry this year, particularly just how much more female plumbers could favorably influence its growth.

?We believe deeply in the inception and growth of more female plumbers into our industry,? Russell Yeckley said. ?It?s an opportunity that has the potential to expand our business.?

Modifications in the plumbing industry are gradually, but certainly, in effect. More women are training in school and earning certifications to become plumbing professionals. They are experienced, competent, and motivated, making them solid competitors for their macho equivalents. These characteristics deem women to be a prime pick when hiring for the provider of plumbers in Mobile, AL.

Being serviced by a female plumbing professional, naturally, has its benefits. Customers feel more comfortable and open when being greeted by female technicians thanks to a woman?s relaxed persona. And since women generally project a more candid tone than men, discussing sensitive information like payment details is much smoother.

?Down the road women could end up being more beneficial to our industry and to our services than we could have ever imagined,? Russell Yeckley said.
