June 10, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

CookArt, based in Federal Heights, Colorado, has recently expanded its line of products to include a product much coveted by many barbeque enthusiasts, a brand new pork shredder. The tool is essential to the quick and efficient shredding of a piece of meat that is otherwise difficult to carve and CookArt anticipated and filled this need. "Barbequing shouldn't be a hassle. We wanted to create this tool, so that everyone can carve their meat easily and enjoy their meal properly. A tool like this is what many men are missing and we are happy to make it available to them", a spokesperson explained.

The tool provides many benefits, including safety, reliability, neatness, speed and ease of handling. While carving, shredding and pulling meat would normally be a messy and lengthy process, CookArt guarantees minimal disruption and an efficient job. In addition, they explain that the user doesn't risk burning their fingers, because the plastic handle is comfortable and guaranteed to remain cool throughout the entire process. The Bear Paw Meat Shredder is one of the most highly-anticipated products that CookArt has launched in the last year: "I'm just looking forward to not burning my hands anymore, while I try to shred my meat, that's all I'm going to say", an excited customer admitted.

One feature that is appreciated by customers is the fact that the meat shredder is highly versatile and can be used on many other types of meat, besides pork. These include chicken and beef, but the tool works on any other kind, as well. For people who enjoy meat often, this is a very valuable asset, because it cuts down on the time spent shredding and on the money spent on designated tools for each meat category, as the company's representatives declared.

Another piece of good news that comes from the company is that even if barbequing is typically a man's job, now anyone can use the CookArt pork Shredder. The teeth are sharp enough to easily shred the meat without effort, while presenting no danger of injury. This is especially appealing to the female and/or older demographic, who will not require assistance in using the new pork shredder tool. Also, the Bear Paw is dishwasher safe and the plastic handle is guaranteed to not lose its shape and become unusable, which sometimes happens with similar meat shredding products.

In addition, the pork shredding tool can be purchased quickly and easily online, at Amazon.com and it is currently available for a limited time at the price of $9.49. Product reviews on the website are overwhelmingly positive and customers appear to be highly satisfied with this new product: "I couldn't ask for a better tool for my barbequing needs. It will become a staple in my kitchen."
