

Pick My Blender Places An Emphasis On Safety

March 03, 2017

March 03, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Pick My Blender is a company that has dedicated itself to helping people find the right blender for their needs. Blenders are hugely popular, particularly because many people use them to create healthy drinks. However, it should be noted that a number of cheap, poor quality blenders have made their way onto the market, and this has led to a number of accidents. As a result, PickMyBlender.com has released new information to help people find a blender that is not just fit for purpose, but also safe.

Terry G. from Pick My Blender says: "There has been a spate of recent accidents involving blenders. Some of these accidents have been nothing short of horrific, and they really demonstrate why it is so important to have extensive safety features on these machines. To help people make the right consumer decisions, we have released new information on blenders we have tested, so that they can choose one that is right for their needs and will not cause them to be injured. We regularly add new reviews to our website, so do keep checking back."

Because of a rise in admissions to the emergency room due to household products, various pieces of research have been completed on the dangers of these items. One report compared the inherent risk of blenders with that of chip pans, and found that, contrary to popular belief, blenders were far more likely to lead to injuries. It has been observed that this is due to the fact that people are generally aware of the potential dangers associated with chip pans, and therefore handle them with more care.

"Blenders are a lot more dangerous than chip pans because of two reasons, we believe," adds Terry. "Firstly, it is because people expect them to be safe and therefore do not pay a lot of attention. But the main reason is because there are now so many cheap manufacturers out there who simply do not add safety features, such as an automatic blade switch off. We aim to combat this by providing people with the information they need about the various blenders on the market."

###

For more information about PickMyBlender.com, contact the company here: PickMyBlender.com Terry Ginfo@pickmyblender.com

PickMyBlender.com

Why I started this site. I were buying a new blender and started talking about how dissatisfied I were with the sparse information online. Try walking into a store and making a good choice without pulling out your cell phone and looking at reviews.

Website: <http://pickmyblender.com/>

Email: info@pickmyblender.com