TheGadget.Space Releases Their Latest Spy Video Camera In The Fight For Good

June 24, 2015

June 24, 2015 -
Thegadet.Space, a gadget and electronics company based in Petaluma, CA, has released a brand new device and they are asking customers to use this for GOOD instead of for EVIL. Many of the best spy cameras available on the market today are used for secret spying operations on ex-lovers and others, often with negative goals. Thegadget.Space, however, wants to make sure people use the spy camera for personal enjoyment, for fun and for security as well.

"Our spy camera is incredibly powerful", says Daniel Pate from Thegadget.Space. "Indeed, the video and pictures it takes are so clear, the details are absolutely amazing. We want our customers to turn the negative connotations associated with spying into something positive and use it to make their lives, and their communities, a better place."

The spy camera is currently available from Amazon for just $24.99, a saving of 48%. This saving is offered for a limited time only, to introduce people to the gadget and give them an opportunity to test it out. The camera is designed to look like a standard key chain, so it won't stand out if it is attached to car or house keys, for instance. It also comes with a free 8GB SD card as well as a full money back guarantee.

Too often lately, there have been talks about police brutality in the news. In the rare occasions that footage has been caught of these despicable acts, it is because somebody was able to get their cellphone out and hit the record button without any police offer seeing them. Thanks to the hidden camera offered by Thegadget.space, people are able to record any such incidents immediately without the worry of getting caught as well. Hence, it is an opportunity to improve the community.

Naturally, this is just one example of what can be achieve with this mini hidden camera. The reviews that have been left about the devices have raised a few other ideas and possibilities of how it can be used for fun and good. All the reviews are positive and discuss issues such as user friendliness.

"This product is adequate for my needs", says Donald Baker. "I could have spent a lot more but my needs are simple - I got tired of standing there with all the other parents at my daughter's schoold events with our iphones stuck in everyone's faces. I've recorded three events now and no one knew it. The video and sound quality are pretty good. Still pics as well."

The disguised video camera will only be available at a discount for a limited time. Hence, customers are encouraged to get theirs quick. Reporting back on how they have used it will be much appreciated.
###
For more information about thegadget.space, contact the company here:thegadget.spaceDaniel Pate270-326-7283staff@thegadget.space1400 Technology Ln #110Petaluma, CA 94954

thegadget.space

We are passionate about our "stuff"! We love to have the latest gadgets and test anything we promote or sell. Our latest offering has a multitude of potential purposes from simple fun to real personal security.

Website: http://thegadget.space

Email: staff@thegadget.space

Phone: 270-326-7283