Sylvia Marie, spokesperson for the company Cleartronics, has announced that the top rated silicone wedding ring for men is once again available on Amazon. However, due to the popularity of this product, she added, it will most likely only be available for a limited time.

The company said that one of the main reasons why their silicone wedding ring was so popular was because of its hypo allergenic medical grade silicone. In addition, this ring is also heat and water resistant, making it perfect to wear in tough environments that a man would generally not wear his traditional gold ring. One customer wrote the following review on Amazon:

"This is a genius idea for men that have a profession and don't want to ruin their wedding rings but still show they are married. My hubby owns his own landscaping business and would ruin his ring if he wore it. But he says he hates not wearing a wedding ring. This has become a blessing. It is eco-friendly and made out of silicone. It is heat and water resistant. He says it's really comfortable and loves wearing it. He doesn't have to worry about ruining this ring because it won't bend or snag his finger while working. It looks very stylish and sleek on him. It is great for people that have jobs or do activities that will ruin your ring!!..."

Julia stated that when they designed the wedding ring, they took into account the tough working environments that many men face every day. For example, firefighters have to deal with high temperatures, mechanics deal with grease and hard metals that can easily scratch smooth surfaces, and people who work outdoors have to deal with anything ranging from extreme weather, to dirt or metallic tools, that can all damage a smooth surface such as a gold ring. She added that even though their medical grade silicone wedding rings are designed to be durable and perfect for an industrious career, style was still a crucial factor. The company implemented a special pigmentation that made the ring closely resemble a metallic look.

A large population of men loves to wear their wedding rings as a way to show the commitment to their partners, but this can be extremely difficult to do when working in these tough environments. The company feels that with their stylish silicone wedding ring, men can have an affordable solution to show this commitment, and rather keep their traditional gold rings safe at home for other special occasions.

Julia stated that the company is very competent in their silicone wedding rings, and to show this they are offering all of their customers an exclusive no questions asked lifetime guarantee. The company said that their goal is to always provide their customers with an excellent buying experience, and their "100% satisfaction or your money back guarantee" is one way to show this.

For those who are interested in buying the silicone wedding ring or would like more information on it, details can be found on the Amazon store page.
