Sports Collectibles And Fan Gear Company Launches Dedicated Online Store

March 20, 2017

March 20, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

KJ Essentials is a company that has been selling products on Amazon for a number of years. They are proud to announce that they have now launched their own dedicated online store. They feel that this move was necessary in order for them to better serve their customers in a more personal way.

Kelly Eisen from KJ Essentials says: "Since our store opening coincides with the start of baseball season, we are offering free shipping for our baseball stadium maps. If you're a baseball fan (or if you know someone who is) come check it out. They make wonderful gifts."

The store's current collections (departments) include collectibles for sports, sports fan gear, kitchen gadgets, and home decor. Products from their barware, pet accessories and preparedness collections are due to arrive. The company expects to expand their product line quickly to include a wider variety of products.

KJ Essentials is dedicated to its customers and to their high quality products. At the same time, they want to enhance the knowledge and enjoyment of sports, and baseball in particular. To do this, they have recently released a YouTube video on the baseball stadium map. This enables people to find out which stadium is where, and what the various national and American league teams are. This video has been created purely for the enjoyment of the sport. The map that is featured in the video is also available for purchase through the new website.

As part of their new online store, the company has also engaged in a strong social media campaign, launching on channels such as Google+ and Facebook. The Facebook page in particular is already attracting a lot of attention, and many people have taken the time to review the company's products. Kelly E., for instance, says: "What a cool gift for the baseball fans..."

The company is committed to expanding its new online store as rapidly as possible, adding more sports collectibles regularly. Committed to quality and superior customer service, they encourage people to view their store and follow their social media channels to remain in constant contact with them.
