March 14, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

According to statistics from the Department of Energy, homeowners with old or drafty houses can save more than 20% on heating and cooling bills by sealing gaps around windows and doors where air escapes. With weather strips being among the popular choices for under doors, Monika's Marketplace has designed a new door draft stopper that provides homeowners with a cheaper alternative.

The product is a handmade, weighted door draft stopper that fits standard size doors up to 37" wide. It works by sealing the small gap under non-recessed doors that sit close to floors but may allow air to flow under. In addition to being cheaper than many vinyl, aluminum, or wooden weather strips, it also does not require installation. Users simply place it at the bottom of the door and remove it when it is not needed. The product is also versatile in that it can be placed on either side of the door and it is also helpful in keeping out hot air during the summer.

Since being launched on Amazon.com, a number of shoppers have expressed their satisfaction with using the door draft stopper from Monika's Marketplace to successfully keep out drafts. While it is not too bulky, it still controls the amount of draft coming under the door. It is lightweight enough so I can move it with my foot into the right position. Thanks, Monika's, said Fada Chaconas, a verified Amazon reviewer.

Made from a heavy duty fabric, the door draft stopper is weighted with small rocks and poly-fiber to provide a snug fit against the bottom of doors. It is available in several colors to match the decors of homeowners. They include burgundy, red rose, and pink with brown. By helping to limit the flow of cold air into a room during winter time, users may have less need to turn up their heating systems.

The handmade door draft stopper, which is made in the USA, is currently in stock for shoppers who are looking for an alternative to purchasing and installing weather strips under their doors. It comes with a hanging cord for easy storage, as well as a free storage bag.
