June 10, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Korus, an owner operated business in New Zealand that sells sports equipment on Amazon, is proud to announce they have received a barrage of new five star reviews on the selling platform for their women padded weightlifting gloves. The gloves are selling extremely well, above and beyond what Korus had originally expected. They hope that the positive trends will continue from hereon in.

"We have always stood 100% behind the quality of our product," says Michael Penn of Korus. "To see that our customers agree with us makes us really proud and committed to the continuous delivery of these gloves."

One of the things that set these weightlifting gloves apart is that they are designed specifically for women. The world of weightlifting for women is still massively forgotten, with many women having to choose male products in order to enhance their sports. While some female gloves do exist on the market, they are often too dainty for the well-developed bodies of the true weightlifter. Korus aims to break through this barrier with their products and this is something that has certainly been picked up in the reviews.

"The finger covers are long enough to prevent the ugly callouses I get from lifting heavy weights at the gym," says Brianna Jordon. "They stay in place & have not completely stretched out yet. The colors are cute & something feminine that I can wear at the gym since I am a feminine girl who happens to be very fit & lift weights."

The gloves are made from perforated goat leather. This ensures the gloves feel superbly comfortable and really soft as well. Most importantly, however, is that they are fit for purpose. They keep the hands supported, cool, comfortable and dry, which helps to enhance athletic performance, as well as making it safer. The gloves also come with pink stretch fabric and silicon printing enhanced with black synthetic leather. This gives it a standout, feminine look. The gloves are designed to be comfortable and light, give excellent protection and stop the hands from getting rough. Again, the five star reviews show that this is one of the most appreciated things about the ladies crossfit workout gloves.

"I have been using these for a couple of months now and they're great!!", says Dutchy. "I've tried many brands but none were as comfortable or durable as these. I not only lift weights with them but I've also done push ups, burpees, etc with them on. The company also has great customer service. I highly recommend them!!"

Korus hopes that the range of positive reviews will continue to make the gloves popular on Amazon. They are committed to the quality of their product and customer service. As such, they also offer a full money back guarantee.
