June 11, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chattanooga, TN based company, OutdoorWind, has announced that their Amazing Grace Wind Chimes may increase the pleasure that gardeners and outdoor enthusiasts feel when in their own yard. The company has made their passion for wind chimes and garden decor obvious, and has claimed that more outdoor products will follow the release of the Amazing Grace chimes. They have said the following regarding the chimes and what they can do to reinvent an outdoor space:

"The unique musical tuning of this chime will brighten your day with a classic hymn. Perfect for Nature lovers that spend time outdoors in their garden and yard."

OutdoorWind invites consumers to visit them at their Amazon product page, which provides photos and more information on the new chimes and their usefulness. Currently, the product is being sold for $24.95, and the reviews and testimonials for the chimes are high, with a majority of 5 star ratings from past users. They encourage other shoppers to continue leaving feedback and ratings on the garden decorations so that future Amazon buyers can also gain insight on how well suited the product is to backyards, decks, verandas, and more. The company says:

"OutdoorWind products are especially designed to bring you the maximum sensory pleasure when you go outside your home. For example, our Wind Chimes are typical for what our brand provides: pleasing sound and a calming effect for your time outdoors."

For those who wish to know more about OutdoorWind, the company directs individuals to the OutdoorWind Facebook page. Through their social media, they connect with current owners of the Amazing Grace chimes, answer questions, share interesting stories and photos, and announce upcoming promotions and future products. They also keep an informative blog on their main website.

Although the chimes are only one product, which the company hopes to share with their customers, they have been incredibly forthright in how much they feel the Wind Chimes will work to completely reinvent the garden experience. They describe the sound as serene, calming, and beautiful, and have suggested that when the wind hits them just right, they can help transport listeners to an internal place of relaxation where the stress and anxiety of the day seems far behind.

The chimes can be hung from a number of surfaces, and consumers who don't have any outdoor space to hang them can still enjoy their sound by suspending them inside of their home near an open window. Whether being used on a small balcony or a large outdoor expanse beneath a blossoming tree, OutdoorWind expresses their pleasure in introducing the products to those who have never owned or listened to a wind chime before.

The main focus of the newest product release seems to be in its ability to help gardeners and those who spend time outside of their homes to enjoy the experience more with the addition of the chimes. The sound released by the ornamental instrument is said to be loud enough to enjoy from nearby distances, without being too loud as to distract from the beauty of the landscape or bother neighbors.
