

Disaster Response Team Offers Free Tips to Prepare Roof and Gutters for Storms

March 28, 2017

March 28, 2017 -
Panama City, Fla. ? Well-established responders, Disaster Response Team, recently offered free advice to their customers about how to prepare their roofs and gutters for the storms ahead.

With warm weather on the horizon, storms begin brewing while homeowners worry about what?s in store for them. Fortunately, the team for restoration in Panama City, FL, compiled advice for their customers so they don?t have to face the rainy season unprepared.

Mark Broersma said, ?We really wanted to offer this advice for the season ahead. Disaster is always a guarantee, so we?d like our customers to be assured on some fronts.?

The DRT employees recommend to first inspect gutters for cracks or holes. Next, guarding the gutter and preventing rust from spreading will help the roof maintain its integrity. Finally, inspect the ceiling for fatigue or settlement to prevent mold or cave-ins. The Disaster Response Team states that prevention is the ultimate defense for damage restoration in Panama City, FL.

?Disaster isn?t a matter of if, it?s a matter of when,? Mark Broersma said. ?While we hope disasters could be avoided by all, these tips can act as a solid first line of defense for your home.?

DRT wants the ensure that businesses and residents in the area remain safe during the rainy season. The company?s objective is to make sure the community is able to return to normal life following any major disaster. Thanks to the attentive experts of the Disaster Response Team, the town of Panama City can breathe a sigh of relief in the months to come.
