Monika's Marketplace, an online store operating out of Sanford, FL, has announced that they have released a chemical test report on their popular Amazon microwave cover. The vented microwave food cover with splatter guard, measuring 10.5" by 3.5" inch, has passed all the relevant standards. It is now guaranteed to be free from BPA.

A representative from Monika's Marketplace says: "We wanted to create a product that meets all the necessary health standards. While we launched our microwave cover some time ago, because we knew it would make the standards, we have now also received confirmation through the chemical test report, giving our clients even greater peace of mind."

The cover is designed to fit all standard plates. It ensures microwaves remain clean from food splatters. Standard dinner plates can be fully covered, leading to far few cleaning sessions. Already known as the best microwave cooking cover, customers have hailed its efficacy, safe usage, and ease of use.

"This Microwave Food Cover has worked really well for us. I have a couple of Le Creuset casserole dishes that didn't come with covers. This cover fits over them perfectly, and is much better than wasting plastic wrap every time I want to use them in the microwave. For re-warming bread or rolls, the cover keeps in the moisture so they don't dry out. Our plates are larger than the cover, but it works very well sitting on top of the plate. In fact, I think it is better than if the plate fit inside because moisture drops do not fall to the outside of the plate...," says an Amazon customer.

The Amazon microwave cover has been designed to be safe to use and easy to clean. Only soap and water is needed, although it can also be placed in the top rack of the dishwasher. The high domed splatter cover also comes with vented steam release. It is high enough to not touch the food, and the handle enables people to easily put it in and out of the microwave oven. The vented top can be opened to release steam, or kept closed so that food remains warm. Most importantly, it is now lab tested and certified to be 100% BPA free.
