Adri Meijerink, who is the spokesperson for the company Ever Greens Store, has announced that a thermometer should be simple to use, reliable, and versatile. They believe that their latest product, the Temporal Thermometer, far exceeds the standards, and can be an excellent gift for a baby shower or for personal use.

The company stated that whether a customer buys this as a mother to be gift or for their own children, they can be confident that they will be receiving an extremely accurate thermometer that is quick, simple and can be used on the whole family.

The Temporal Thermometer has been designed to have four functions. Besides its typical use, which is to measure the forehead and ear temperature, it can also measure the temperature of liquids, such as from a baby's bottle or bath water, as well as room temperature and other objects. Adri added that their temporal thermometer even shows the time.

The company said that when they chose this thermometer, it was their mission to help give every family piece of mind in a stressful situation. Caring for little ones can be very challenging. Most children will wriggle, or even try to escape, when parents use the older styled thermometers to take a temperature, and this can make the whole process very frustrating. The Temporal Thermometer takes a lot of the stress away by always providing a fast, one second, reading, and in the most comfortable way possible.

The company said that the Temporal Thermometer comes with one button, which is to ensure that the device is completely simple to operate. Parents simply want to pull out the device and use it straight away without having to mess around with too many buttons just to get it working.

Another feature that has been designed in to their thermometer is the auto shutoff function. If after 10 seconds have passed, no reading has been taken, the Temporal Thermometer will automatically shut off in order to save battery life. One customer wrote the following review on Amazon,

"This thermometer does is all! I am beyond pleased with this thermometer, it can be used on every person in your home, in every stage of life, infant to adult. This thermometer will measure your temperature accurately by forehead scan and by ear in one second. But it doesn't stop there, this top quality thermometer can be used to check the temperature of bathwater and baby's milk/formula, or even the temperature of a room. You will NOT find another thermometer that does ALL this!!"

The Temporal Thermometer can be changed to Celsius or Fahrenheit. This is possible by removing the battery cover and pressing the mode button located inside. Ever Greens Store will also be sending a free e-book called, A Smart'er' Child, to all customers that buy their thermometer. For more information on the product, the company urges interested parties to visit their website. Here, customers will be able to get full details on the temporal thermometer, and if they have any further questions, can contact the company directly by email.
