SwartzCulleton.com offers an updated website which includes a media section with commercial. The workers compensation lawyer commercials provide several examples of the promotional materials on television.

Newtown PA: SwartzCulleton and Brandon Swartz are pleased to announce that they have launched an updated website at <http://www.swartzculleton.com/media>. The new section contains a sampling of the commercials which have appeared in the media. The advertising snippets speak to prospective clients in a variety of situations. Personal injury victims from car accidents, medical malpractice or unsafe premises can get the justice they deserve.

Another SwartzCulleton.com commercial addresses nursing home neglect. Clients may have unexplained bruises, falls, bedsores and even wrongful death. The team at SwartzCulleton understands nursing home neglect and will fight for just compensation.

The Philadelphia workers compensation lawyer discusses the possibility of entitlement to a large cash settlement rather than weekly workers compensation checks. For those people who have been injured on the job, a cash settlement may be possible. The legal team at SwartzCulleton is experienced at helping people who have sustained work injuries, even if the claim has been denied.

The legal professionals bring experience in a range of areas of practice. These include medical malpractice, workers compensation, long term disability, construction accident, motor vehicle accidents, premises liability, products liability, dram shop claims and professional malpractice.

The website which has been updated contains a wealth of information about legal matters. There are descriptions of some of the significant winning cases and the settlement amounts. The wins are in all of the practice areas. The attorneys offer their success statistics in order to put potential clients at ease about the expertise and professionalism of the legal team.

Another category found on the updated website presents publications which have been prepared by the firm's members. One article presents a template for the effective cross examination of an expert witness. Another publication describes anatomy, diagnostic testing and medical experts: winning strategies for plaintiff's direct and cross examination. The materials include explanations of anatomy which can be used for preparatory purposes.
