Sofa beds are so popular is because there are several advantages that go along with them. They are comfortable to sleep on, comparable to high quality traditional mattress sets. They are flexible in every sense of the word. The sofa beds are handy for surprise guests or a sick family member. Because they are more compact than regular couches, and are more compact compared to a normal size bed, they provide more space in a room. An attractive sofa bed costs less than what a plain couch would cost and provides two pieces for the price of one.

Before buying a sofa bed, there are a number of features to consider. These include style, size and type of mattress. Mattresses are available in memory foam, innerspring hybrids and organic mattresses. The weight of the furniture must support the individuals who are likely to use the bed. The purpose of the sleeper sofa should also be considered. If it is only occasionally used as a bed, the appearance is important. For those sofas which are mostly used for sleeping, sturdiness and comfort are important. The operation of the mechanism and frame affects how functional the furniture is.
