Home Inspection Geeks Inc. is proud to announce that they will be including the RecallChek service with all of their future home inspections. RecallChek is a new report that will be emailed to every client after their inspection is complete to inform them of recalls on any of their household appliances. Additionally, clients will receive monthly updates of the report to ensure they are made aware of any future recalls and can even add or update appliances if they so desire. The Logan Square home inspection company states that this service is designed to protect homeowners and their homes and to give them peace of mind.

"We are excited to add this new service that will provide our clients with peace of mind for as long as they live in their new home," says Timothy Wojnar with Home Inspection Geeks. "It is our mission at Home Inspection Geeks Inc. to make the home inspection process better and adding RecallChek to our services is just one of the many ways we are trying to accomplish this mission."

Wojnar states that the company typically finds one recalled appliance for every 10 homes that they inspect. He says that this means other inspectors may be missing a potentially dangerous fire hazard.

When a dangerous product is manufactured, the manufacturer is required by law to recall that item and repair it for free. The home inspection Chicago company states that their RecallChek will provide information to homeowners that enable them to resolve potential recall issues quickly.

"Your home inspector must record the model numbers of any appliances that are built into your home, including your HVAC system," says Wojnar. "That MNA or model number algorithm matches the appliances against the RecallChek database to determine if any of them have been recalled. "

Wojnar says that the monthly newsletter mailed out to clients will notify homeowners of any new appliances that have been recalled and provides helpful monthly maintenance tips as well. When interested in having a home inspection Oak Lawn residents or any of the surrounding Chicago areas can reach out to the company via their website.
