Haymarket, Virginia - Dr. Sina Reangber, a Haymarket dentist, notes that the addition of dental veneers can do much more than simply repair chipped, decayed, or otherwise damaged teeth. It can also be used for cosmetic purposes, sometimes even assisting in the battle against aging by making patients look younger.

A quick glance at the TV shows actors, models, and other personalities with perfect white smiles. To many this can be frustrating due to the fact that when they look in the mirror they are confronted with an imperfect smile. For years people planning a visit to the dentist in Haymarket, VA looking to get veneers were doing it mainly for practical purposes, but these days it is much more commonly done for cosmetic purposes.

When it comes to sign of aging, many think primarily of gray hairs, a few extra pounds, and lines or wrinkles on the skin. Another sure giveaway of age is the teeth. Coffee, wine, tea, tobacco, and more cause stains on teeth to accumulate over the years. Similarly, teeth that were down over the years due to poor hygiene or teeth grinding or clenching can also show one's age. Dark spaces in the back corners of the mouth when smiling are other signs of aging.

Fortunately, veneers can help address all of these problems. They can solve the problem of discolored teeth while also making worn down teeth look longer again. Not only that, veneers help to widen the smile, doing away with the empty spaces in the back corner of the mouth and can even reduce wrinkles and laugh lines by pushing out the facial area above the veneer. Pushing out the mouth helps mend wrinkles on the lip while also giving the lips a more youthful, fuller appearance.
